"The Canadians in Normandy"

At approximately 0730 hours on 6 June 1944 the eight lead companies of the two Canadian assault Brigades landed on Juno beach under withering fire from German beach defences; they took 50% casualties in the process of securing the 3rd Canadian Division's landing. In getting there they passed through lanes swept by Royal Canadian Navy minesweepers, were supported by naval gunfire from many RCN ships, and many were brought ashore by RCN landing ships and assault craft. By nightfall Canadian troops were eight kilometres inland, farther than any other allied troops landing over the beach. Over the next 90 days three Canadian Divisions and one supporting Armoured Brigade fought Canada's largest battle of the Second World War. Their contribution to the Allied victory was substantial - of 37,000 allied soldiers killed in the Battle of Normandy 5,000 were Canadians. Additionally, more than a thousand Canadian airmen were killed in the battle. Proportionately, Canada's casualties were the highest of all the allied nations.

All of the Canadian formations and units in Normandy were fighting their first battle of the war. They made the same mistakes all troops make under these circumstances, but learned from their experience. They fought against, and defeated, some of the best German Panzer and SS Panzer formations on the western front, and ended the battle as seasoned soldiers second to none.

The presentation will cover the Canadian operations within the Allied operational context, including the political implications when the high infantry casualties led to conscription in Canada for service overseas.

Colonel Maxwell has a History degree from the University of Manitoba and is a graduate of the Canadian Forces Staff School, the US Air Force Air War College and the Canadian Forces Senior Defence and Security Studies Programme. He has written several articles on Canada's role in both World Wars. He is now retired and lives in Sechelt BC. Colonel Maxwell was appointed as an Officer in the Order of Military Merit in 1989.

Last Month Speaker

Dr. Cheryl Wellington and President Dan Potts

We thank Dr. Wellington for her excellent presentation that has provided an understanding of the focus of the UBC Brain Research Centre and in particular, the dedication of Dr. Wellington and her associates to researching the causes and prevention of Alzheimer's Disease (AD).

The incidence of AD is extensive. Of those over the age of 85 one half suffers some degree of AD. In 2001, 1 in 8 persons 65+ was afflicted and this is expected to increase to 1 in 5 by 2026. While AD usually shows itself in the older age groups, it is known that the development often begins in middle age e.g. 40s and 50s.

Dr. Wellington told us that we each have within our powers the ability, through lifestyle, to influence and retard the onset of AD. It is known that hypertension, high cholesterol levels and diabetes can be contributors to AD. All of these are largely controllable by lifestyle and/or medication. Research has shown that head injuries also are linked to dementia and importantly, they are cumulative. Exercise, both physical and mental, along with careful dietary considerations should be a major part of our lives and will enhance our resistance. Also, studies are ongoing to determine the value of Statins and anti-inflammatory drugs in the fight against AD.

Research costs money, a lot of money. By way of example, the cost for generating and initial testing of over 30 prevention/treatment formulations, optimization of these and non-human efficacy testing, is estimated at $1.9 million. To obtain this level of funding requires many applications to potential sources and occupies a great deal of time and effort that might well be better spent on research.

We can be thankful for the efforts of the Brain Research Centre and in particular, for those of Dr. Wellington and her associates. Importantly, there is hope for us and generations to come. Her presentation is on our website for viewing at: <http://www.probus-northshorevancouver.ca/speakers.htm>.

President Dan Pott's Notes

Another great turnout and great presentation by a fascinating speaker in October. I must admit some of the technical details of Cheryl's presentation were over my head but her message was clear. There are a lot of very talented people working hard to find a way to stop or delay the onset of dementia and Alzheimer's disease. Further, there are grounds for hope that progress will be made but it is not likely that any new drugs or treatment regimens will be available very soon. And by the way, send more money!

Membership renewal has gone very well. The response to the first renewal notice was an amazing 83%. As of early October we have over 300 members with about 50 members yet to respond. The Management Committee is continuing the policy of accepting new members and will do so as long as the attendance at monthly meetings does not exceed the capacity of Capilano Golf and Country Club.

From my discussions with members there are a variety of views regarding the size of the club. Some think the club has such a large membership it is impossible to know everyone and the result is a less friendly and enjoyable monthly meeting than might be the case if the club were smaller. Other members would not want to exclude folks who want to join. Some think the club should split in two, but how to do that poses some serious problems.

Do you have any thoughts on this issue that you would like to share? Please send them to me at my email address danpotts@shaw.ca.
